Daniel Massick

Principal Consultant, The Table Group

Daniel brings a unique perspective and set of experiences as a former minister and spiritual advisor to leaders from around the world. He has worked with top executives in various industries in Europe, South America and the United States. During this time, he provided guidance and counseling, for spiritual, intellectual, and personal development that equipped them to become better leaders of their organizations.

Daniel works regularly with leadership teams in quickly and effectively applying the concepts captured in all of Pat Lencioni's books. He has worked with top leaders in multiple industries, ranging from financial executives on Wall Street, to movie producers and directors in Hollywood, and high-tech executives in Silicon Valley.

Daniel's lifelong passion for helping people find fulfillment in their personal and professional lives, has led him to join the Table Group and apply his gifts to Lencioni's vision of organizational health.

Daniel earned a master's degree from Regina Apostolorum in Anthropological theology in Rome, Italy, where he also acted as an academic director and advisor to students for several years. Daniel also founded and led a retreat center for personal and spiritual growth of leaders in the Silicon Valley.

As a former college athlete, Daniel enjoys staying active. Whether cycling, hiking, skiing or doing water sports, he can be found enjoying the beautiful outdoors of the golden state and currently lives in the San Francisco East Bay.
