Members of a leadership team can gain a general sense of their organization’s health, and more important, identify specific opportunities for improvement by completing the following checklist.

Discipline 1: BUILD A COHESIVE LEADERSHIP TEAM

- The leadership team is small enough (three to ten people) to be effective.
- Members of the team trust one another and can be genuinely vulnerable with each other.
- Team members regularly engage in productive, unfiltered conflict around important issues.
- The team leaves meetings with clear-cut, active and specific agreements around decisions.
- Team members hold one another accountable to commitments and behaviors.
- Members of the leadership team are focused on team number one. They put the collective priorities and needs of the larger organization ahead of their own departments.

Discipline 2: CREATE CLARITY

- Members of the leadership team know, agree on and are passionate about the reason that the organization exists.
- The leadership team has clarified and embraced a small, specific set of behavioral values.
- Leaders are clear and aligned around a strategy that helps them define success and differentiate from competitors.
- The leadership team has a clear, current goal around which they rally. They feel a collective sense of ownership for that goal.
- Members of the leadership team understand one another’s roles and responsibilities. They are comfortable asking questions about one another’s work.
- The elements of the organization’s clarity are concisely summarized and regularly referenced and reviewed by the leadership team.
Discipline 3: OVERCOMMUNICATE CLARITY

- The leadership team has clearly communicated the six aspects of clarity to all employees.
- Team members regularly remind the people in their departments about those aspects of clarity.
- They leave meetings with clear and specific agreements about what to communicate to their employees, and they cascade those messages quickly after meetings.
- Employees are able to accurately articulate the organization’s reason for existence, values, strategic anchors and goals.

Discipline 4: REINFORCE CLARITY

- The organization has a simple way to ensure that new hires are carefully selected based on the company’s values.
- New people are brought into the organization by thoroughly teaching them about the six elements of clarity.
- Managers throughout the organization have a simple, consistent and nonbureaucratic system for setting goals and reviewing progress with employees. That system is customized around the elements of clarity.
- Employees who don’t fit the values are managed out of the organization. Poor performers who do fit the values are given the coaching and assistance they need to succeed.
- Compensation and reward systems are built around the values and goals of the organization.

MEETINGS

- Tactical and strategic discussions are addressed in separate meetings.
- During tactical staff meetings, agendas are set only after the team has reviewed its progress against goals. Noncritical administrative topics are easily discarded.
- During topical meetings, enough time is allocated to major issues to allow for clarification, debate and resolution.
- The team meets quarterly away from the office to review what is happening in the industry, in the organization and on the team.
